Cutting More Logs Than Last Year.

The Connecticut Valley Lumber Co., which has the large annual drive down the Connecticut river, is this year cutting 45,000,000 feet of logs as compared with 43,000,000 run down the river last year. The talk which it made last year n regard to the new law that will be in cree this year in Massachusetts, requiring all logs to be rafted before they enter the states, seems not to have been the ban to its business which it talked then, says a correspondent. Certainly the business is not being curtailed this
